In 1942, Erik Thulin designed a Pike trap and sold it to fisherman throughout Scandinavia, and so began the Thule Company. By the 1960s Thule was concentrating on the automotive market, and it was at this time that the company designed and sold its first roof rack. Decades later, the company designs, tests and builds state-of-the-art Thule roof racks, Thule roof boxes, Thule bike racks, and ...

Solid build - low profile - easy to put together and mount. One of the rib bars came bent upward than the rest but no big deal (can't be seen from any side) and connecting the two halves was a tiny hassle due to one of the male ends not being straight (had to use a hammer and consistently pound at the insertion point to join the halves together).
